Dear Publisher:

We are enclosing a check for the use of your publication(s) text in our ASAP databases. The attached statement summarizes the calculations for the period of January 1, 1987 through June 30, 1987.

Scheduled to be completed this fall, are reloads of the ASAP databases on Dialog. The reloads will add features to aid the user such as KWIC and HILIGHT. KWIC (called Key Word In Context) is a browsing format and will display that portion of the record containing the user's search terms. KWIC allows a user to move to relevant portions of the retrieved document with greater ease. HILIGHT compliments KWIC by highlighting through either increased brightness or asterisks, the location of the user's search terms in the text of the record.

The reload will also standardize the search codes of the ASAP databases with those of other Dialog databases. This will allow users greater ability to move from file to file. Given the strong correlation between user satisfaction and usage, we believe the new Dialog features will compliment the usage of the ASAP databases.

1987 marks the 10th anniversary of Information Access Company, and the Magazine Index^{tm}, our first product. The Magazine Index^{tm} and the other IAC databases, the Computer Database^{tm}, Legal Resource Index^{tm}, Magazine ASAP^{tm}, Management Contents^{tm}, National Newspaper Index^{tm}, Newsearch^{tm}, Trade & Industry ASAP^{tm} and Trade & Industry Index^{tm} have become popular information resources. IAC also publishes similar versions of the above products in print, COM (Computer Output Microfilm), and now on CD-ROM disc.

Your participation in the ASAP databases ensures that your publication(s) will be indexed by IAC. IAC indexes benefit you by giving your publication a longer shelf life and a higher profile.

Thank you for your continued cooperation and support.

Sincerely,

Jinna Gibson
